

P. S. HOE.
Printers' Case-Stand.

No. 129,281.

Patented July 16, 1872.

Witnesses.

Inventor

Edward H. Johnson

Peter S. Hoe

Charles C. Durgin

By C. C. Durgin
Att'y

UNITED STATES PATENT OFFICE.

PETER S. HOE, OF NEW YORK, N. Y.

IMPROVEMENT IN PRINTERS' CASE-STANDS.

Specification forming part of Letters Patent No. 129,281, dated July 16, 1872.

Specification describing a new and Improved Printers' Case-Stand, invented by PETER S. HOE, of the city, county, and State of New York.

Nature and Objects of the Invention.

My said invention relates to type-stands used by printers. The invention consists in a printer's case-stand, made of pipe and couplings, so that it can be readily taken apart for transportation and removal, while it is very strong, light, neat, and ornamental in appearance; and has for its object to make a better case-stand than has heretofore been made.

The drawing, Figures 1, 2, and 3, shows a perspective view and parts in detail of a case-stand constructed in accordance with my invention.

General Description.

I take, of any desired size, iron pipe, say half-inch or three-quarters, the desired lengths, and, with proper couplings, screw the whole together, as shown in the drawing. The couplings are cast with the projecting screw-ends of the desired number in the desired place upon them, as shown. The rods c c have a set-off formed by a coupling or equivalent for the edge of the back tray of the case-stand, while the front tray will rest against the edge of the couplings at a a. To the upright rods A A are attached, in any proper manner, by screws, rivets, or clamps, angle-pieces B B, in which the trays rest. It will be understood that the lengths of pipe that make up the case are right and left screw-threaded. The case thus made is light, and can readily be made portable by unscrewing the parts.

I claim, as a new article of manufacture—

A printer's case-stand, constructed of pipe, substantially in the manner described and specified.

PETER S. HOE.

Witnesses:

C. A. DURGINS,
E. H. JOHNSON.