[57] CLAIM

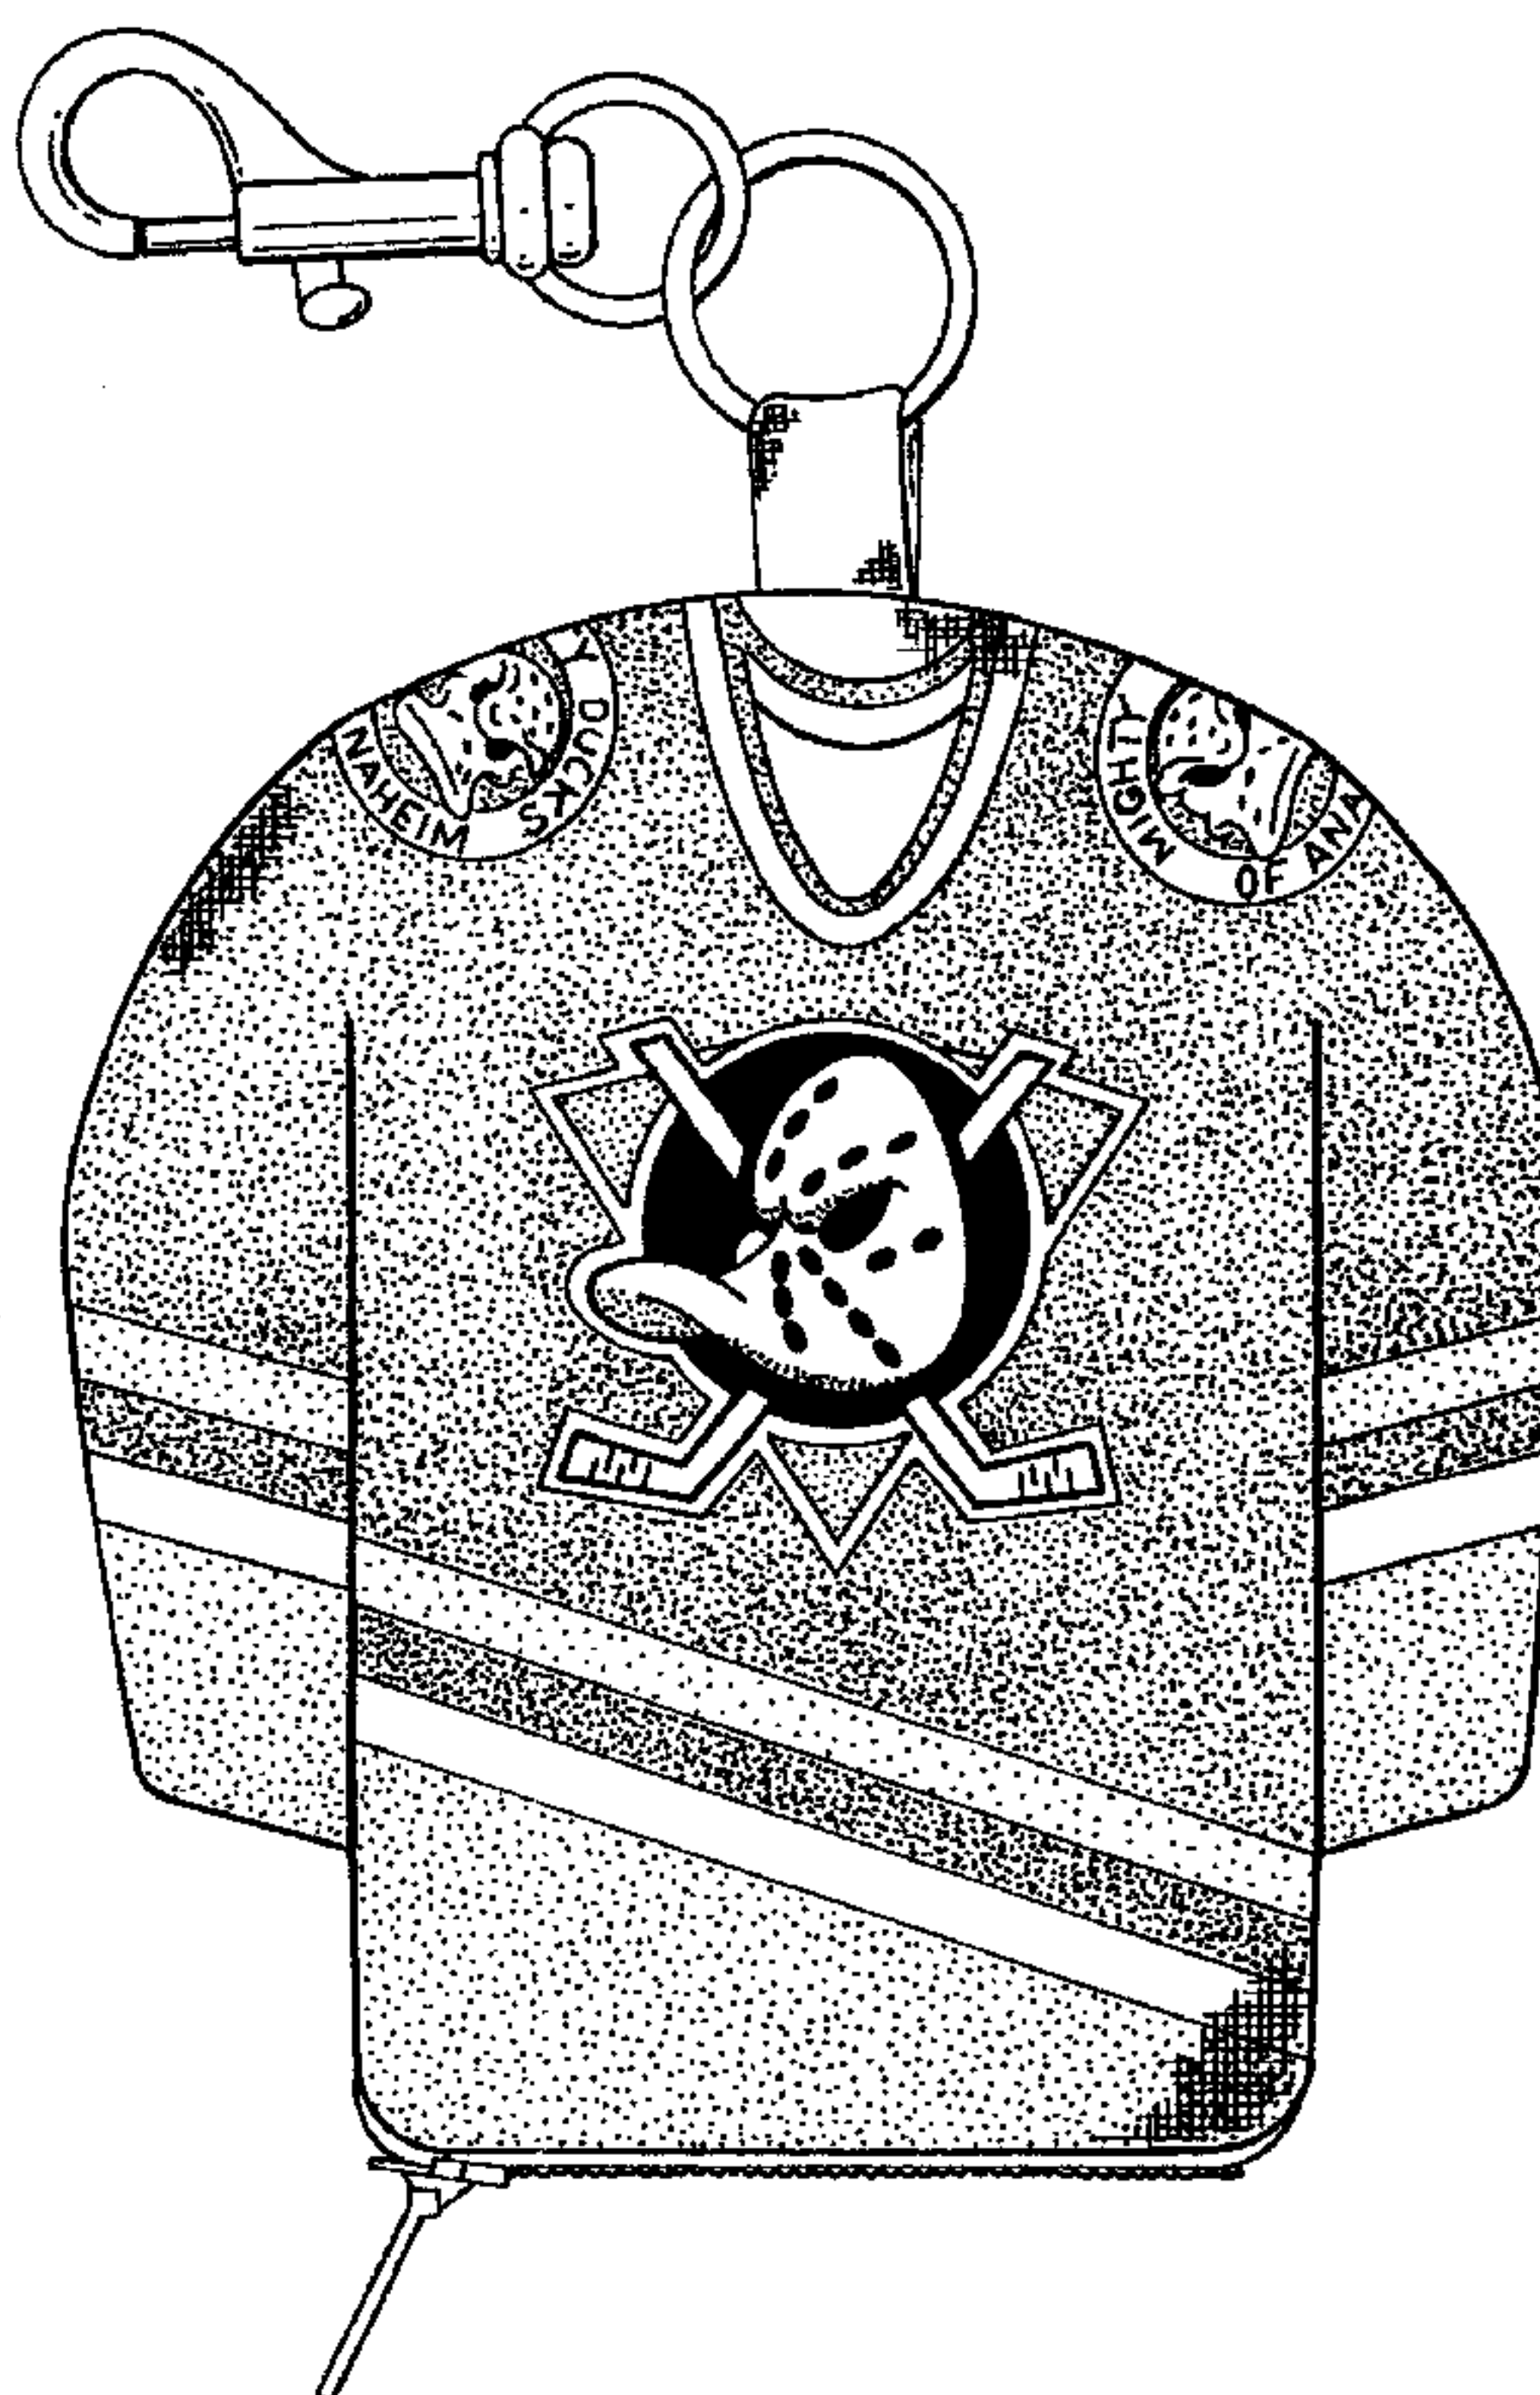

The ornamental design for the “jersey pouch with key chain,” as shown in the accompanying drawings.

FIG. 1 is a front elevational view of an embodiment of a new design of a jersey pouch for containing coins, paper currency and plastic cards such as credit cards, with a key chain, the front side being decorated with indicia showing a first jersey or sweater design for an ice hockey team; and,

FIG. 2 is a rear elevational view with reference to FIG. 1, the rear side being decorated with indicia showing a second jersey or sweater design for an ice hockey team, the side and end views of the jersey pouch not being shown since the pouch is substantially planar.

No claim is made to the particular indicia shown in the Figures, as these are the property of the teams depicted. Although the Figures show the indicia as being the “home” and “away” shirt designs for the respective teams, the essence of the invention is the use of different indicia on the front and rear surfaces of the jersey pouch, so the invention would extend to cover the use of the jersey designs of different teams also, such as depictions of the jersey designs of the New York Yankees and the Atlanta Braves on opposing surfaces of a jersey pouch commemorating the 1996 World Series; the jersey designs of the Detroit Red Wings and the Philadelphia Flyers on opposing surfaces of a jersey pouch commemorating the 1997 Stanley Cup Finals; or the jersey designs of the Chicago Bulls and the Utah Jazz on opposing sides of a jersey pouch commemorating the 1997 National Basketball Association Finals.
