(57) CLAIM

The ornamental design for a vehicle lamp, as shown and described.

DESCRIPTION

FIG. 1 is a front perspective photograph of one embodiment of the vehicle lamp of my invention having a translucent housing;

FIG. 2 is a front elevational photograph of the vehicle lamp illustrated in FIG. 1, the shadowed portion appearing at the ends thereof being formed by the flash photography;

FIG. 3 is a top plan photograph of the vehicle lamp illustrated in FIG. 1, the shadowed portion being formed by the flash photography;

FIG. 4 is a bottom plan photograph of the vehicle lamp illustrated in FIG. 1, the shadowed portion and the reflection in the two spaced recesses being formed by flash photography;

FIG. 5 is an end elevational photograph of the left side of the vehicle lamp illustrated in FIG. 1, the right side being a mirror image thereof, the shadowed portion appearing to the right being formed by the flash photography; and,

FIG. 6 is a front perspective photograph of a second embodiment of the vehicle lamp of my invention illustrated in FIGS. 1-5 having a transparent housing the shape of the lamp illustrated in FIG. 6 is the same as the shape illustrated in FIGS. 1-5.

The bottom of the vehicle lamp is attached to a support surface and, therefore, not seen when the lamp is in use.
