DESCRIPTION

FIG. 1 is a front perspective view depicting end, top and side views according to the design, wherein the top exhibits a first color and the side exhibits both the first color and a second color;

FIG. 2 is a top view according to the design in which a simulated wood grain of the first color is depicted;

FIG. 3 is a front perspective view depicting end, bottom and side views according to the design, wherein the upper surface (bottom) exhibits the second color and the side exhibits both first and second colors;

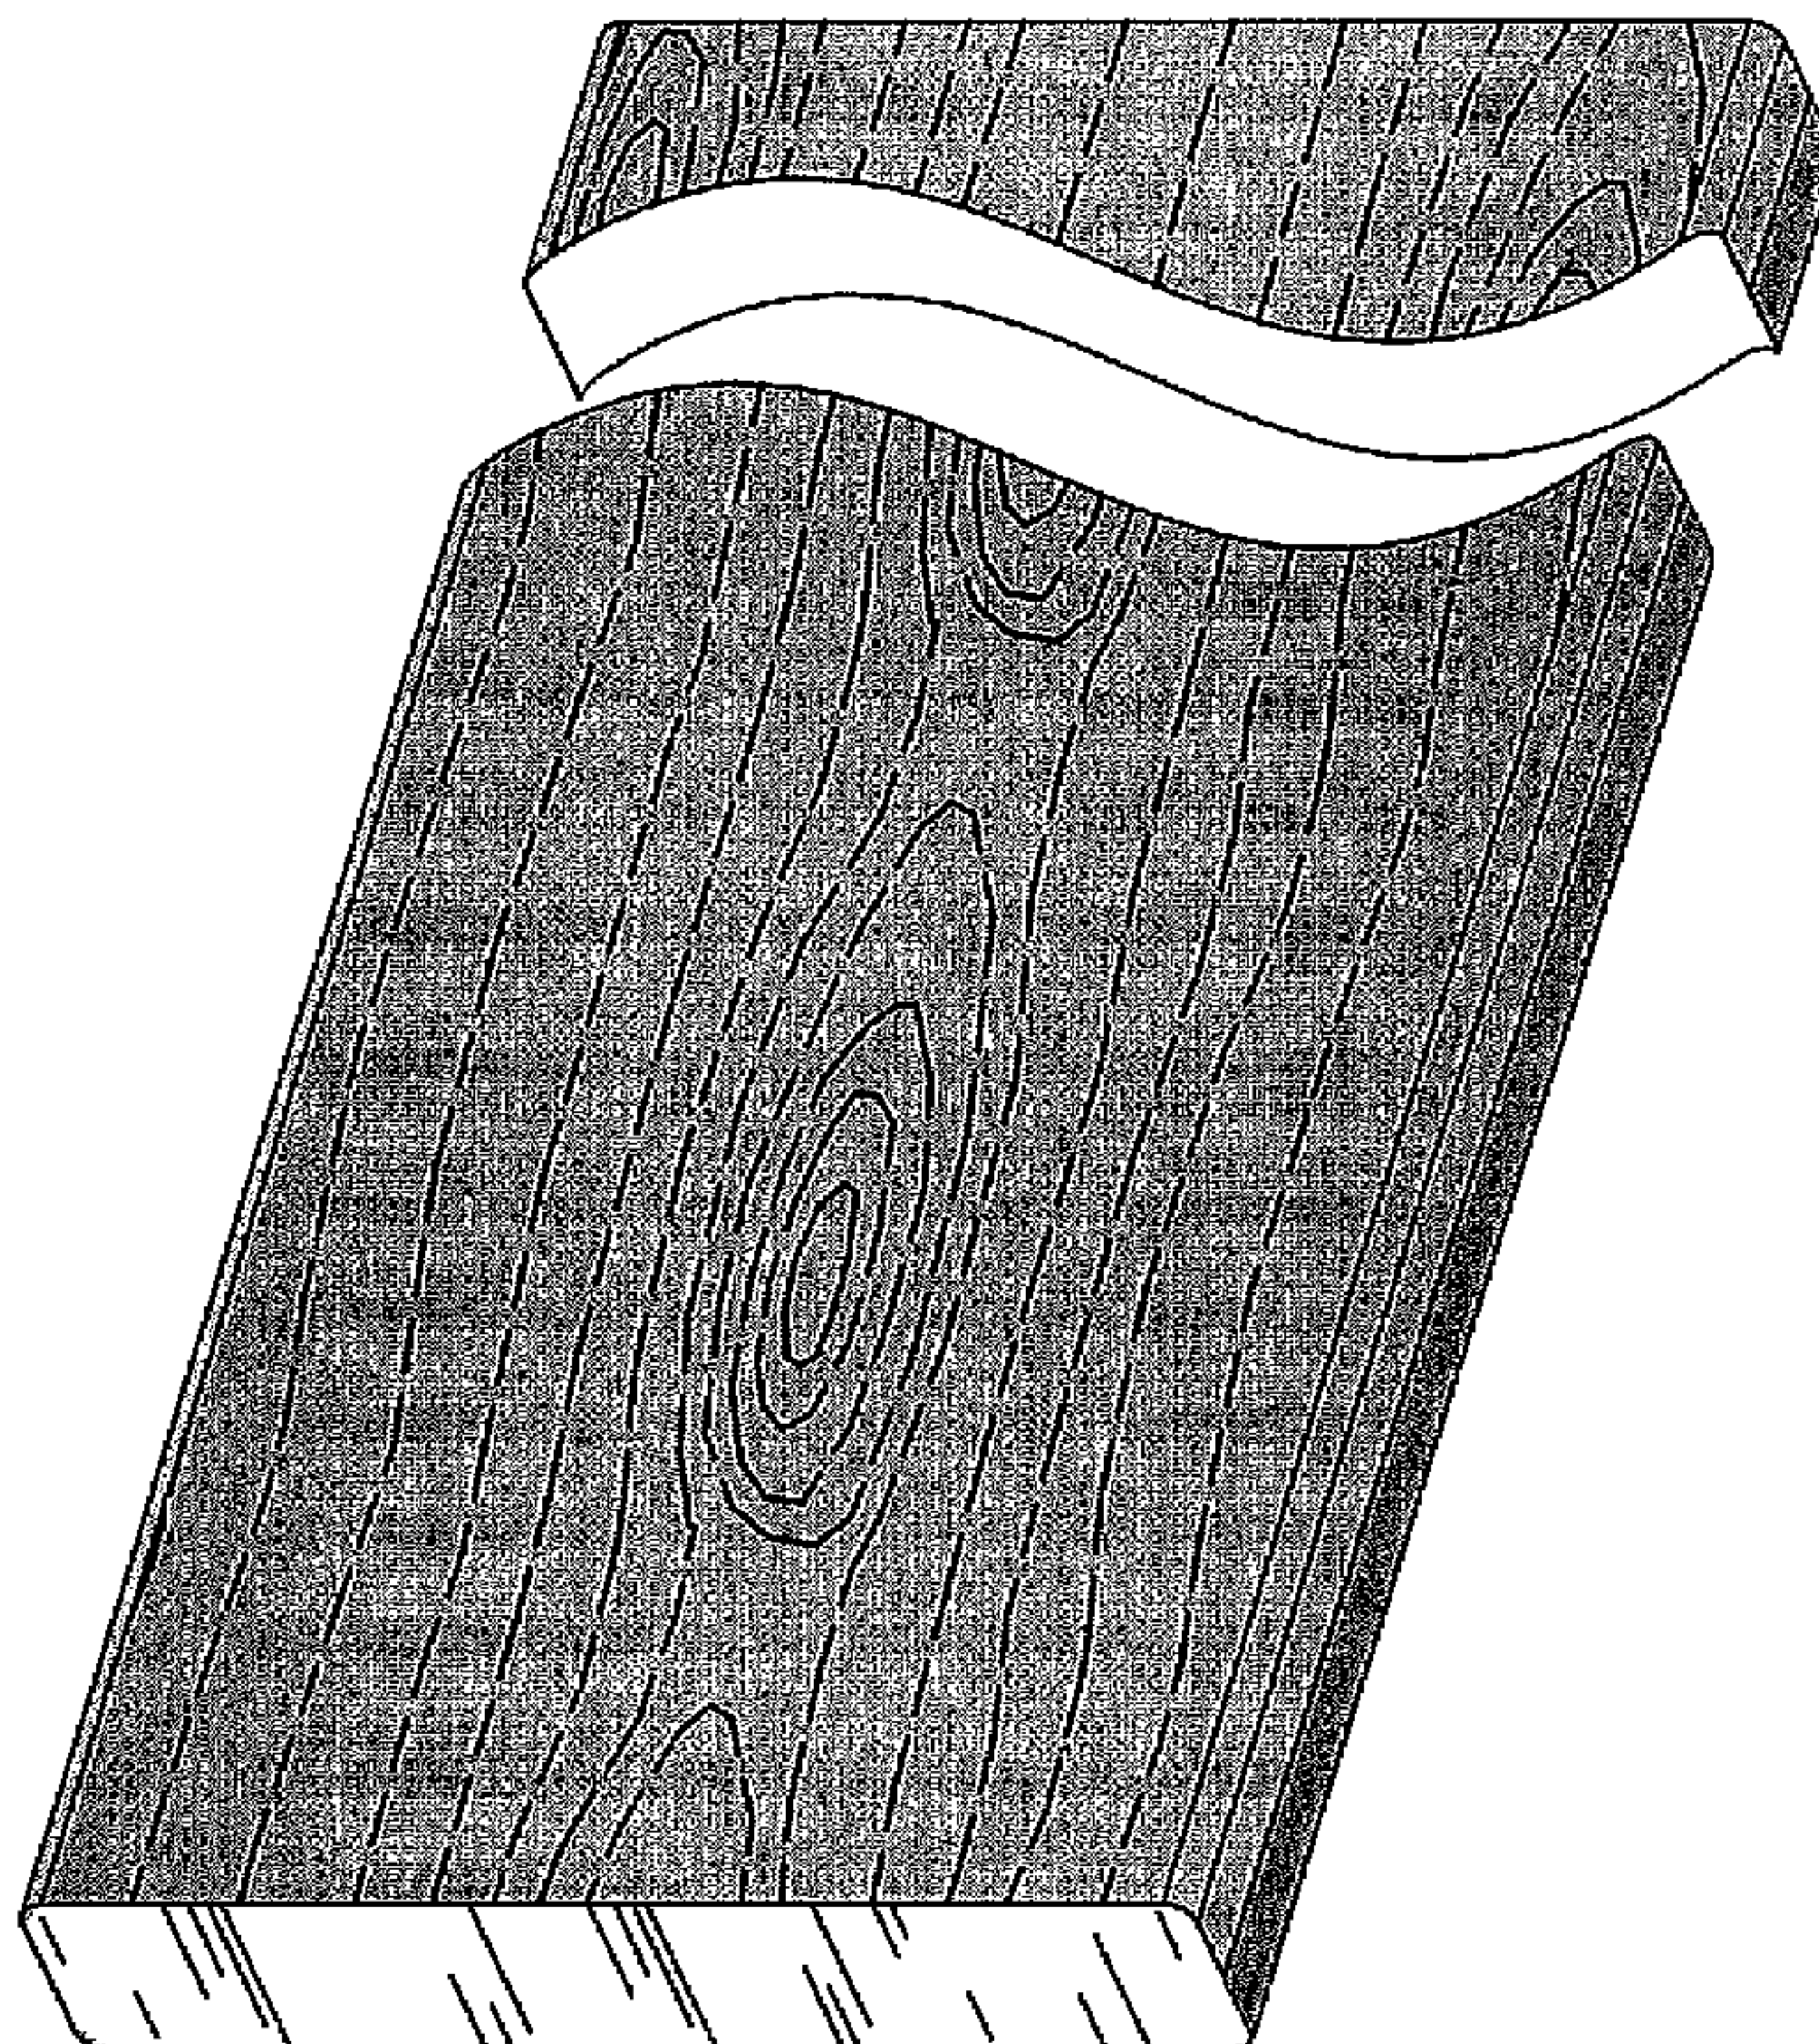

FIG. 4 is a bottom view according to the design in which a second color is depicted; and,

FIG. 5 is a side view according to the design.

The deck board has been broken in the center to indicate indefinite length. The specific wood grain pattern depicted in the Figures is for illustrative purposes only.

The characteristic feature of the design resides in the use of a first color for the top surface and upper side surface portions of the deck board, and a second color for the bottom surface and lower side surface portions of the deck board, the first and second colors being different.
