(57) CLAIM

The ornamental design for a bed of nail garment for the neck of an animal, as shown and described.

DESCRIPTION

FIG. 1 is a bottom-side view of a bed of nail garment meant to be worn around the neck of an animal, the dark circles on the garment's left and right panels representing groups of "nails" or short spikes attached to the inside surfaces of the garment and meant to provide stimulation and massage to the neck muscles during use and, the four protruding tabs representing buckles or fasteners meant to hold the garment closed around an animal's neck during wearing;

FIG. 2 is a top-side view of the bed of nail garment, the top sides of the garment's left and right panels being the visible outside surfaces of the garment when it is worn by an animal; FIG. 3 is a front-side view of the bed of nail garment with the nail-bearing side facing upward and the narrower portion (depicted as the top part of the garment in FIGS. 1 and 2) facing the viewer;

FIG. 4 is a rear-side view of the bed of nail garment with the nail-bearing side facing upward and the wider portion (depicted as the bottom part of the garment in FIGS. 1 and 2) facing the viewer;

FIG. 5 is a left-side view of the bed of nail garment with the nail-bearing side facing upward; and,

FIG. 6 is a right-side view of the bed of nail garment with the nail-bearing side facing upward.
