The ornamental design for a duo wrap bandage, as shown and described.

DESCRIPTION

FIG. 1 is a perspective view of a duo wrap bandage for particular use in wrapping a horse's leg;
FIG. 2 is a plan view of the exterior surface of the duo wrap bandage, showing the main body, the extensions, and one type of hook and loop fastening material on the exterior surface;
FIG. 3 is a plan view of the interior surface of the duo wrap bandage, showing a corresponding type of hook and loop material on the interior surface; and,
FIG. 4 is a plan view of the exterior surface of the duo wrap bandage with the extensions rolled in their pre-use configuration, prior to being wrapped around a horse's leg.
The thin solid lines in the views illustrate the uniformity of the planar surfaces of the claimed duo-wrap bandage, as well as the contour of the rolled portion in FIG. 4 and are not a claimed surface pattern.
The broken lines depicting the three radiating lines, as well as all other broken lines in the drawing figures, are understood to represent stitching.
