(57) CLAIM

We claim the ornamental design for a portable golf club carrying case, as shown and described.

DESCRIPTION

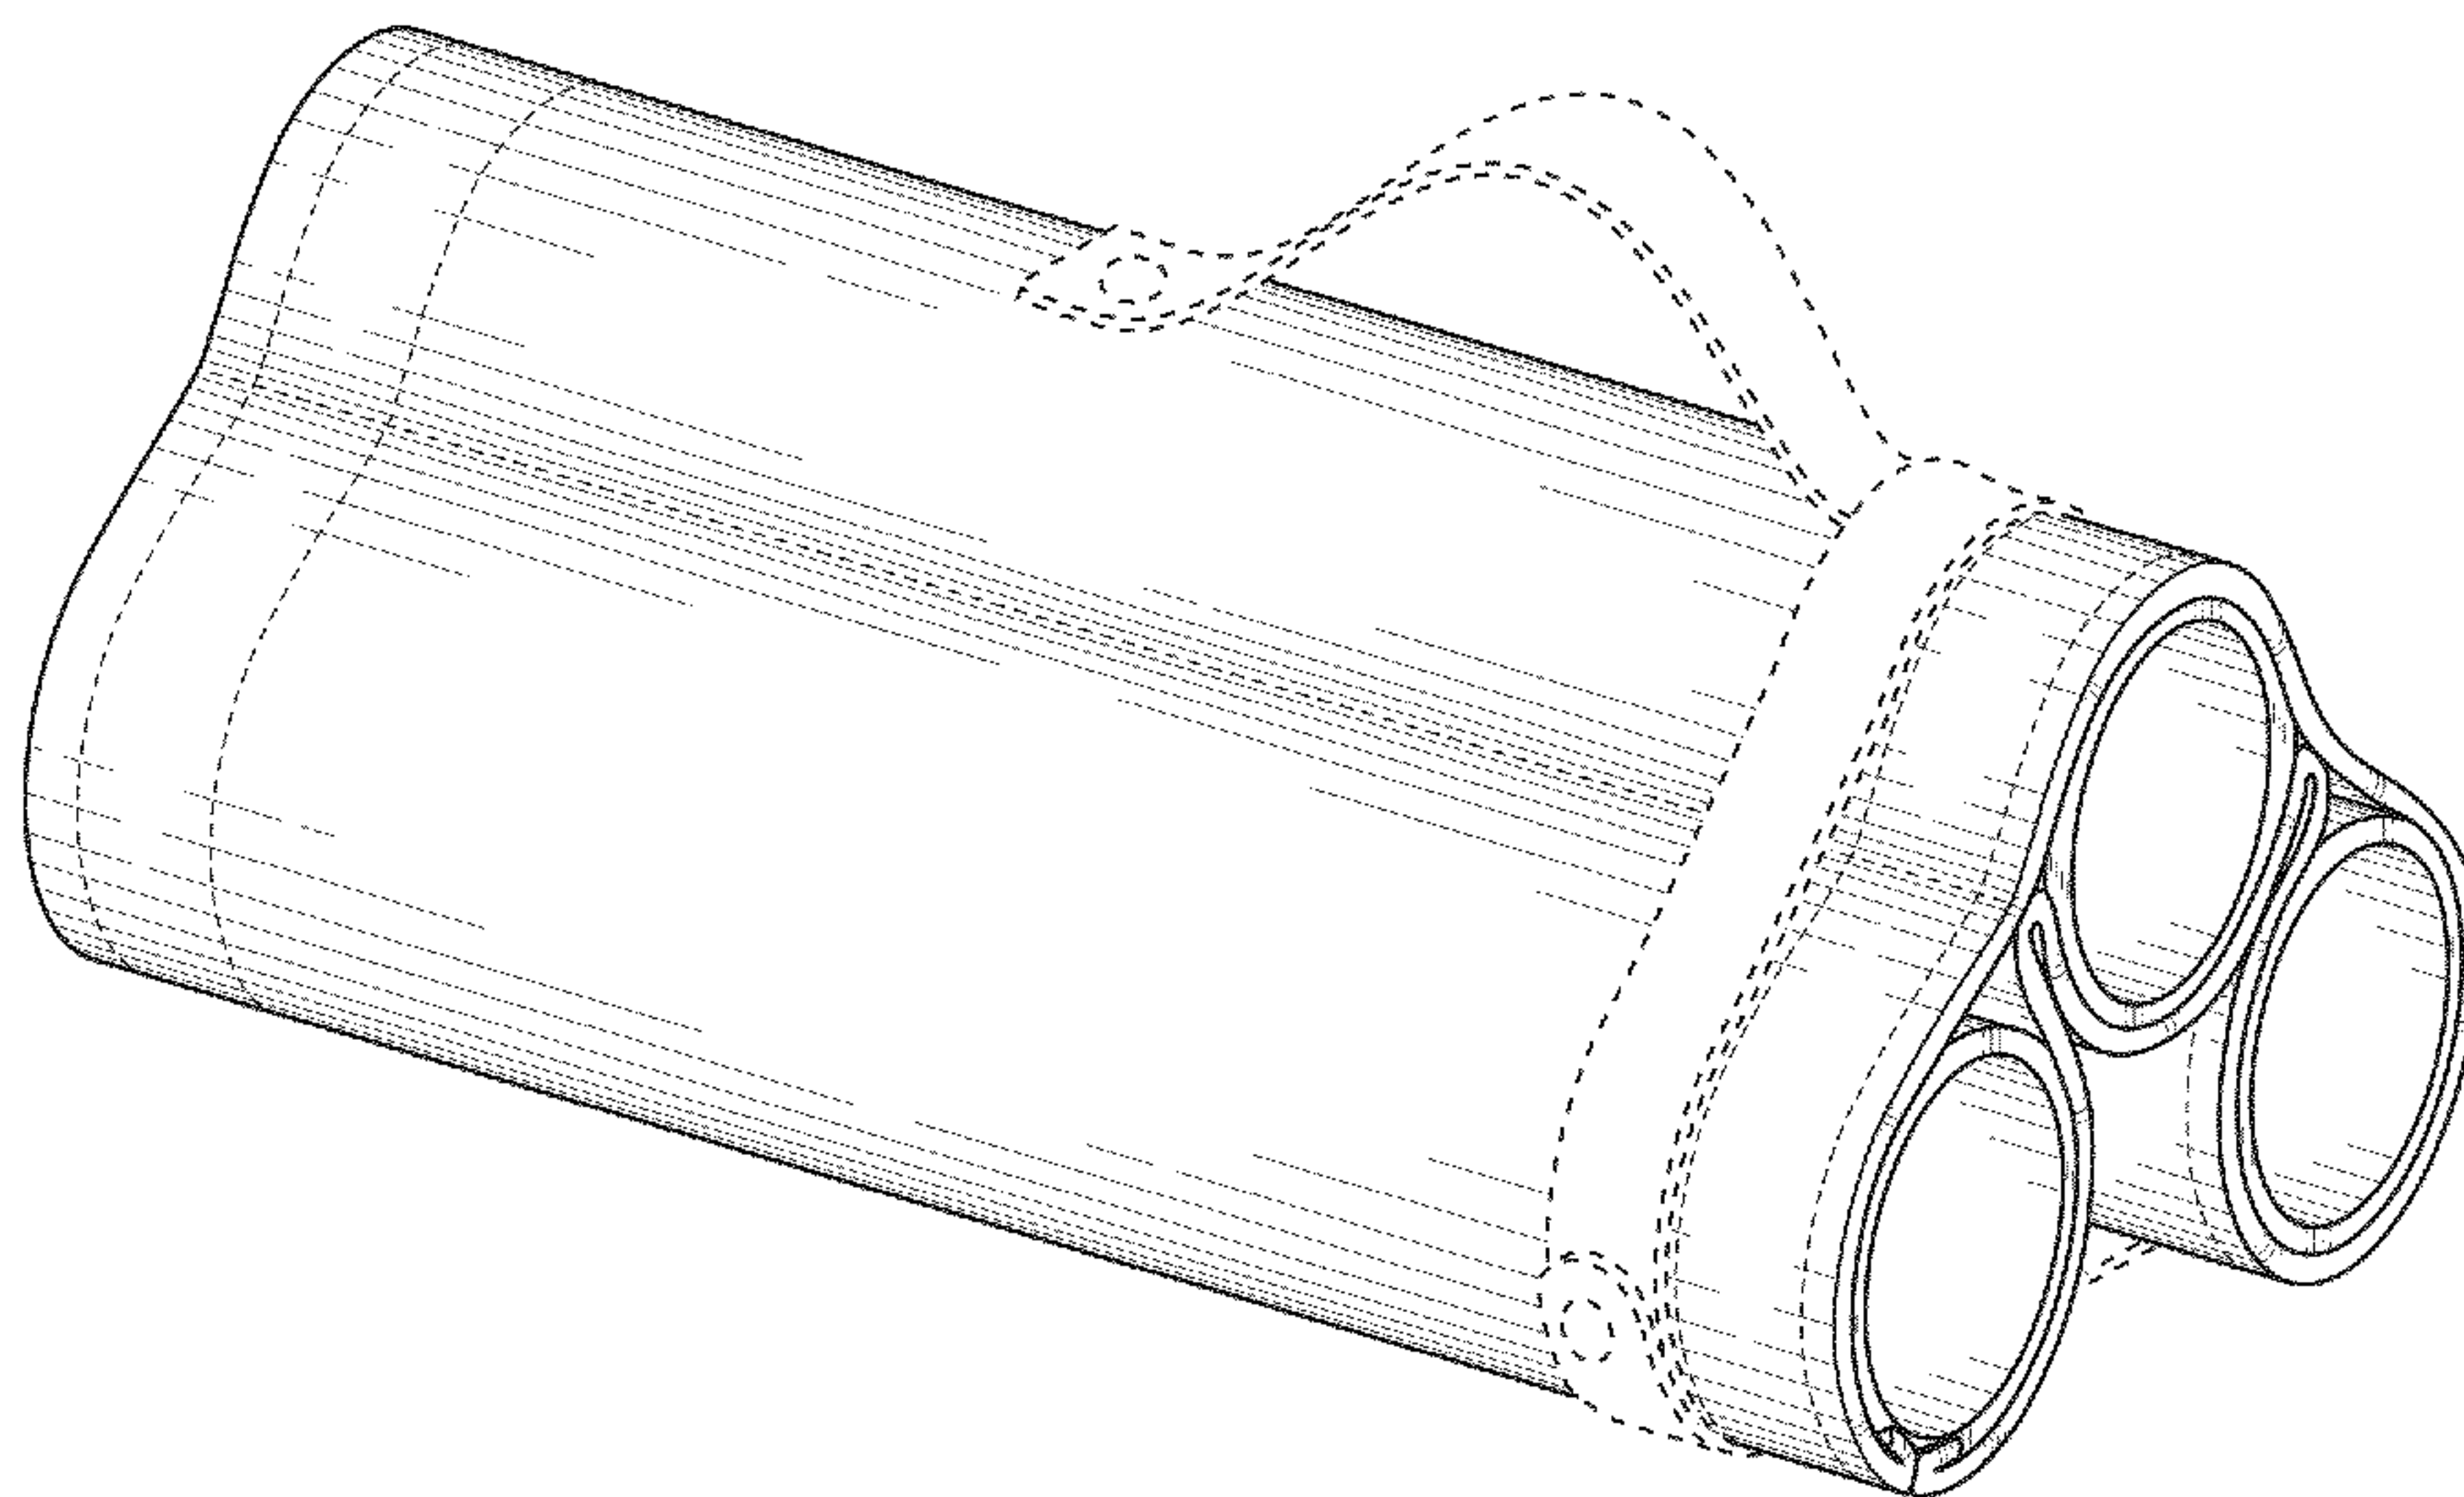

FIG. 1 is a side perspective of the portable golf club carrying case which illustrates the three receptacles for holding the golf clubs, the general shape of the case, and a handle; and FIG. 2 is a side perspective of the portable golf club carrying case showing the handle placement; and FIG. 3 is an end view of the portable golf club carrying case; and FIG. 4 is a top view of the portable golf club carrying case; and FIG. 5 is a view of the bottom side of the portable golf club carrying case.

The broken lines showing straps and handles are for the purposes of illustrating environment and forms no part of the claimed design.

This design invention relates to a portable golf club carrying case which may be used in conjunction with a standard club case or as a standalone unit. The portable carrying case contains three circular slots for inserting golf clubs quickly and easily without the need for transporting an entire set of golf clubs from one point to another.

The case may be enclosed in a variety of materials and colors, and an embodiment may include a longer handle which would serve as a shoulder strap for user comfort or preference.
