(57) CLAIM
The ornamental design for a liner for receiving human waste products, as shown and described.

DESCRIPTION
FIG. 1 is a perspective view of a first embodiment of a liner for receiving human waste products, showing my design; FIG. 2 is a top view thereof, the bottom view being identical thereto;
FIG. 3 is a front view thereof, the rear, left side, and right side views being identical thereto;
FIG. 4 is a top view of a second embodiment of the liner, the bottom view being identical thereto;
FIG. 5 is a front view thereof, the rear, left side, and right side views being identical thereto;
FIG. 6 is a top view of a third embodiment of the liner, the bottom view being identical thereto;
FIG. 7 is a front view thereof, the rear, left side, and right side views being identical thereto; and
FIG. 8 is a top view thereof prior to use, disposed within the bowl of a toilet;
FIG. 9 is an enlarged, top view of the central portion of the first embodiment;
FIG. 10 is an enlarged, top view of the central portion of the second embodiment; and
FIG. 11 is an enlarged, top view of the central portion of the third embodiment.
The liner for receiving human waste products is a sheet of material having fluted ribs, and channels between the fluted ribs. The converging lines in the Figures depict the channels between the fluted ribs. The channels converge at a point in the center of the material of the liner. There is no break or aperture in the material at the point of convergence of the crease lines.
The contrasting stippling in the Figures represents contrasting appearance, color, texture, and/or material. The broken line showing in FIG. 8 shows environment and forms no part of the claimed design.
