(57) CLAIM

We claim the ornamental design for [the handheld computer,] an electronic device, as shown and described.

DESCRIPTION

[FIG. 1 is a perspective view of a handheld computer.]

[FIG. 2 is a front elevation view.]

[FIG. 4 is a left side elevation view.]

[FIG. 6 is a top plan view.]

FIG. 8 is a perspective view of an [alternative embodiment of the handheld computer] electronic device.

FIG. 9 is a front elevation view.

FIG. 10 is a left side elevation view.

FIG. 11 is a right side elevation view.

FIG. 12 is a top plan view.

FIG. 13 is a bottom plan view.

[FIG. 14 is a perspective view of an alternative embodiment of the handheld computer.]

[FIG. 15 is a front elevation view.]

[FIG. 16 is a rear elevation view.]

[FIG. 17 is a left side elevation view.]

[FIG. 18 is a right side elevation view.]

[The broken line disclosure is for illustrative purposes only and forms no part of the claimed design. The handheld computer shown is a design including elements which may be shown on one side (left or right) of the handheld computer, but may be located on the other side instead. Accordingly, the complementary design for an handheld computer, described by a mirror image of FIGS. 1-20 is considered within the scope of the claimed design.] The cross-like broken lines that divide the length, width, and thickness of the electronic device represent boundaries of the claimed design. The long solid lines with dash-dot-dash breaks surrounding the innermost perimeter of the display window which includes oblique line shading represent the boundaries of the display window. Further, the dash-dot-dot-dash broken lines surrounding the entire front panel of the device also represent the boundary lines. The remaining broken lines illustrate unclaimed portions of the electronic device.
